SharePoint Site - DSLs in Schools and APs site

Thank you to all the DSLs that have been in touch to confirm they are accessing the SharePoint site for DSLs in schools and APs. If you have not been able to access the site, please contact Justine Clephane: justine.clephane@northumberland.gov.uk so you can be given access as soon as possible. We would appreciate any feedback you have about the content of the site as well as any feedback regarding access. Feedback on accessing the site will be passed onto the IT department so any issues can be resolved.

Crime Information and Reporting Service for Children and Young People

Fearless.org is a website or app where young people can make referrals if they are concerned about something or want more information or guidance on a particular issue, like carrying a knife or drug possession, for example. The young people can see what the law says and what the consequences of certain actions would be. This service allows young people to do this in a way that doesn't put them at risk and allows them to think about the consequences of their own, and their peers' actions. They can use the Fearless.org A to Z of crime to help them understand the consequences of getting caught up with the law and know where to go for further help or any support they may need.

The Fearless.org service also allows children and young people to report information about crimes in a way that is 100% anonymous as it is not necessary for them to pass on any personal information. There is also a 'Hide your visit' button so their peers are unable to see that they have been accessing this site.

Fearless appeared in Safe To Learn last year, this is just a reminder to share this information with children and young people. <https://www.fearless.org/>

Childnet – STAR SEND Toolkit

Lockdown has meant that many children are spending far more time online than they would be under normal circumstances and this poses many risks to their safety. The STAR SEND Toolkit is an extensive teaching toolkit to support educators with the relevant knowledge they need to help young people with special educational needs and disabilities to manage the internet and its risk. The resources are aimed at young people with SEND in Key Stages 3 and 4 and can be adapted for the needs of different young people and settings. The toolkit can be accessed by following this link: <https://www.childnet.com/resources/star-send-toolkit>

Talking to Young People About Domestic Abuse and Sexual Violence

UK Says No More is a national campaign to raise awareness to end domestic abuse and sexual violence. The campaign has produced a resource specifically written by young people to support parents and carers to talk to their children about domestic abuse and sexual violence to help them recognise healthy and unhealthy relationships. Many of the resources available will be helpful to teachers to support them in delivering good quality relationship and sex education. For many young people, the status of being in a relationship is extremely important to them and as such, many are willing to put up with almost anything to maintain that status and stay in a relationship, even an abusive one. Some young people are not living in households where they are seeing healthy relationships modelled for them, which may make them vulnerable themselves. Teaching children and young people about abusive relationships will help protect them from unhealthy relationships and give them the knowledge, skills and understanding to recognise unhealthy relationships and access the support they need for themselves and their friends.

Message From Northumbria Police

If there are any queries in schools where you may be planning to loan a laptop to a child or young person to support their home learning, but have concerns about someone else in the household using the laptop to access inappropriate or illegal materials, please contact Miriam Harper 9630 from Northumbria Police's Safeguarding Schools Team: 9630@northumbria.pnn.police.uk The team are happy to answer your queries and support you in these matters.

The police are also aware of the media information relating to seizures of drugs in the local area and where necessary would make direct contact with schools. They have also produced a force intelligence form for all partners to use to feed intelligence into the Force Intelligence Mailbox. This assists the police to assess the information provided and have a consistent approach. The new form has been saved in the SharePoint site for DSLs in schools and APs.
