John Scott

Management Plan Coordinator

Frontiers of the Roman Empire World Heritage Site (Hadrian's Wall)

Hadrian's Wall Partnership

John always knew he wanted to do something related to heritage work. From the age of 10, he was taking volunteer roles on archaeological sites and in local museums. For the last 25+ years, John has been fully engaged in the management of cultural sector projects and attractions, primarily in the East Midlands region. Working in the environmental, arts, economic development and heritage sectors, John's aim has been to bring these disciplines together and share cross-sector best practice to negate boundaries between sectors as far as possible.

John's experience of interpretation, education, community engagement and visitor management compliments with his qualifications in Business and Performance Management and Heritage Management. A long-term relationship with Creswell Crags Museum, Nottinghamshire as Projects & Operations Manager (and, latterly Assistant Director) saw him take a pivotal role in the development of a £6.5 million Museum's capital project. Johns' current role as World Heritage Site Coordinator see him working across the whole site from Ravenglass to South Shields balancing the many facets of this particularly complicated site.
