

Warren Taylor

Blyth Town Mayor

I am a Town Council Member for Wensleydale Ward in Blyth. My background is in teaching and youth work and I taught at the former Ridley High School in Blyth for a number of years. Following that I moved into public service via local government with North Tyneside Council, where I held a number of management positions, mainly within the Leisure and Cultural Services directorate over a 25 year period, during which time I completed a Post Graduate Diploma in Total Quality Management.

As a weekly volunteer at Blyth Foodbank and a member of the recently formed Blyth Food Partnership I am passionate about supporting our most vulnerable residents in Blyth, through the provision of everyday basic essentials, through to opportunities for training, personal development and employment.

I see the joined up approach between employers, educationalists, local government, support agencies and civic leaders on the Blyth Town Deal Board as vital in ensuring that any opportunities offered are available to all members of our community in Blyth.
